N & W TO HONOR MEN FOR SAFETY RECORD

Railroad groups whose 1954 performances most helped the Norfolk and Western attain its safest year in history will be honored at a system-wide series of dinners within the next few days.

The N. & W. completed last year with a casualty rate of only 2.91 per million man-hours worked, compared to 3.33 the previous year and 4.11 in 1952. A "casualty" is defined as an injury which keeps an employee from the job more than three days.

The Norfolk General Agency was outstanding in the road's annual safety contest, with a perfect safety record in 1,176,746 man-hours to lead not only all terminals but every other group with anywhere near its working time.

The Pocahontas Division which embraces the rugged West Virginia coal country was first among divisions with a rate of 2.58. Williamson won among line shops, Group A, with 1.13, and Crewe was ahead among line shops, Group B, with a perfect record for 269,649 man-hours. Eight other shops in this classification also reported no injuries but had less man-hours. They were Bristol, Lynchburg, Radford, Iaeger, Kenova, Norton, Wilcoe and Pulaski.

The Tailored Casual is so-o-o-o flattering.

REFRIGERATED APPLE STORAGE WILL PAY FOR ITSELF

Refrigerated apple storage on the farm will pay for itself in three to five years, depending on how efficiently it is used, says Dr. J. L. Maxton, agricultural economist at VPI Extension Service.

Adequate refrigerated storage is essential for orderly marketing and proper holding of the Virginia apple crop, in Dr. Maxton's belief. Growers have two alternatives. They can store in commercial or community-owned-and- operated storage or they can use their own or a neighbor's storage. The grower who has his own is solely responsible for construction of the building, operation, and maintenance. He has full control of marketing, usually to his advantage. There is ease of loading and less congestion. He can sell more readily with less cost.

Just how the storage will pay for itself is shown in Dr. Maxton's five-year summary of apple prices and net gains over and above the cost of storage on the farm.

In the years 1950 through 1954, the average August price per bushel was $1.83. It rose progressively until April when it hit an average of $2.51. In that month growers selling out of storage could count on a 44¼c net gain per bushel. In the intervening months, growers could count on the following net gains: November, 02c; December, 25½c; February, 30¾; March, 35. Then in May the price started tapering off, with a 41c net gain per bushel that month, followed by June 37½c, and July, 05c.

The pattern is similar virtually every year, and the grower who can take advantage of it stands to gain, Dr. Maxton says.

Detailed information on on-the-farm storages are available from the Agricultural Extension Service VPI, Blacksburg.

COMMISSION KEEPS UP EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

The educational work which the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries has conducted in recent years has paid handsome dividends. This work is being constantly intensified with realization that there still remains a great deal to be done.

When the long-range wildlife program was set up in 1948 and widely publicized, a definite effort was made to keep the public fully posted on all phases of the Commission's work, its objetives, its attainments and its failures, if any, with a view to corrective measures. The public has unquestionably appreciated efforts that have been made to lay all cards on the table and solicit the sympathetic support of the people.

Needless to say, the cooperation of all classes of citizens is imperative in carrying forward the aggressive movement which is in progress to expand Virginia's natural resources and, particularly, to perpetuate and broaden opportunities for citizens to enjoy the great recreations of hunting and fishing.

Chick Chats

STILL TIME TO START CHICKS

There's still time to get in on the good egg prices this fall —provided you start the chicks right away.

It takes roughly six months from the time a chick is started to the time it reaches good production. Chicks started now should be producing well by September.

Egg prices have always been higher during the six months of the year. The reason for this price difference is that more eggs are produced from January to June; therefore the price is lower.

Hens that are not laying well in March probably will not be profitable later on. If your hens are not laying more than 50 per cent now, it may be wise to sell them and start a flock of pullets in the laying house.

Loafing Layers

Hens that suddenly quit laying in late winter or early spring are often just not heavy producers. However, before you get rid of such hens, be sure that the slump is not caused by your management errors.

Check the poultry house to see that it is well ventilated and without drafts. Make sure it is tight enough to afford protection against weather chills, dampness, and drafts are often responsible for laying slumps.

Inadequate feed that lacks certain food nutrients may be at the base of your trouble. Make sure the loafing birds get plenty of grain such as corn which is high in fat content.

Perhaps the layers need more variation in their diet. A warm, crumbly mash may be helpful for lagging layers. It may be advisable to add a conditioner consisting of stomachic drugs to the diet.

When you are convinced that feed or management is not to blame, get rid of slumping hens. The loafing hen is a drain on the poultryman's purse. If she cannot be brought back into production she should be removed from the flock.

If you must get rid of your hens, make plans for a flock of pullet chicks. March is your last chance to start chicks that will be producing well during much of the season of good egg prices.

Easter Seal Sale Planned

The annual Easter Seal Sale of the Virginia Society for Crippled Children and Adults will be held Thursday throughout the state according to an announcement today by Dr. W. T. Sanger, Richmond, president of the Society.

Nearly a half-million lapel tabs in the blue and red Easter seals will go into the mails this week to launch this year's campaign on behalf of the handicapped of the state.

No goal has been set in the campaign, according to Dr. Sanger. "We, of course, hope to raise at least as much as last year to keep our present treatment centers and clinics in operation, but any extension of our services will naturally depend upon whether we receive more funds than we received last year," he said.

Last year, the Easter Seal Sale netted by helped 4,725 persons in all parts of the state. Of this number, 1,161 were children and 1,161 were adults. The majority of these persons received services through the society's part-time treatment and transportation centers which the Society operates in Richmond and Norfolk, and through 10 quarterly regional clinics which it sponsors.

Dr. Sanger pointed out that a large percentage of the people helped by the Society last year were on its rolls, since those helped by such conditions as cerebral palsy and epilepsy usually require the longed period of treatment.

"It is for this reason," Dr. Sanger said, "that we urge the continued support of our citizens, or else many of the gains we have already done will be lost unless we can see these children through to a complete recovery."

Supper At Oakville Sch

The P.-T. A. of the Oakville School will serve a full course turkey supper at the school on Friday night, March 11th, from 6:00 to 8:00 P. M.

Proceeds of the sale will go to further the projects of the association.

Various committees of parents and teachers are working hard to make the event a pleasant and successful one for all who attend.

This worthwhile undertaking deserves the support of everyone who is interested in the welfare of the school.

Health Dept. Prepares For Polio Vaccine

Detailed plans are now being made worked out for the possible administration of polio vaccine to 438 children of Appomattox County who will be eligible to receive it if it is licensed, Dr. H. E. Jenkins, Health Director, declared today.

As was announced by state health officials, all first and second grade pupils in public, private and parochial schools in the state (if applies) all children who were part of the test groups in the 1954 vaccine field trial but did not receive vaccine at that time, are included in the planned program, he explained. It also will be available through physicians at the same time.

But parents were warned by Dr. Jenkins not to jump to the conclusion that the current planning indicated the vaccine already had been proved effective.

"The vaccine which will be furnished by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is the same vaccine that was given to 440,000 children last spring" he said. "We do not know yet whether it really prevents paralytic polio. Until April when we will learn the results of the evaluation study now being conducted at the University of Michigan, we cannot know if the vaccine is effective.

"But we cannot wait unti then for planning for the protection of as many of our children as possible. Vaccinating large numbers of children is a big and important job entailing many procedural tasks that can't be performed over night.

"If the license is granted in April, we must be ready to start vaccinating at once, so that, if possible we can finish before our schools close and the polio season starts. We want to give the vaccine early so that many children can be protected before polio appears in their communities.

"This program would not be another test but the first use of a newly-established preventive measure."

The polio vaccine will be furnished from a supply being purchased by the National Foundation with March of Dimes funds. It will be made available by National Foundation without charge for the product to State Health Directors for use in the above groups, if licensed by the Federal Government. Supplies also will be distributed through usual channels at the same time.

The National Foundation has financed the development and production of the Salk vaccine. Contracts were made with manufacturers for a supply of vaccine costing $9,000,000 in March of Dimes funds.. This enabled manufacturers to keep their production facilities in operation during the waiting period and be ready to go into full production as soon as the vaccine is licensed.

"Vaccine would be given by the Health Department this spring only to those children whose parents sign forms requesting it," Dr. Jenkins added. "It is a completely voluntary program. The forms will be distributed through the schools at an early date. We should like to know as soon as possible how many eligible children we must provide for, if the vaccination program is carried out. If the vaccine is not licensed, there will be no program."
